Nas - Untitled. Nas: Untitled Nas Untitled. Nas: Untitled. Untitled (album) Untitled is the debut studio album by American rapper Nas. It was released on February 2, 1992, by Columbia Records. It was released in conjunction with Nas' 1993 single "One Love". The album is commonly referred to as Nas-O or Nas-Off. Background and recording Nas originally recorded the album in 1991. Nas-O was planned as a double-album, and it was to be released as such. It was meant to contain the song "One Love", the intro, and the outro for the record. In 1992, Nas decided to release it as a single-album, as he was no longer satisfied with his work, and he did not like the cover artwork. The songs on Nas-O were recorded during the early part of Nas' career. The songs were recorded on a basic four-track in Nas' uncle's garage. It is unknown what label the album was on, or whether it was on any label. The reason the album was canceled was that Nas was trying to maintain a level of anonymity for the time. Nas was told to record a double album, and not include his name on the album cover. Track listing Information taken from the album's liner notes. Sample credits "N.Y.
