Long-term outcome and survival after pregnancy-related cerebral venous thrombosis. The aim of this study was to present long-term outcomes and survival after pregnancy-related cerebral venous thrombosis (P-CVT) and to identify prognostic factors. We retrospectively reviewed clinical data of our patients with P-CVT and compared our findings with those of the previous literature. Sixteen patients were included in our cohort. The mean age of the patients at the onset of P-CVT was 26 years. The most common presentation was headache, followed by papilledema. At least 1 predisposing factor was present in 69% of the patients. Median follow-up time was 5 years (range 0.5-21 years). In our cohort, 3 patients died during follow-up. In 12 patients (75%), the initial P-CVT was due to pregnancy; in all of these cases, other risk factors were identified.
