Download Gpib Card Driver And Visa32_libQ: How to interpret 2-9 multi-phase polyphase filters in frequency domain I need to design a polyphase filter which will be part of my frequency down converter. The following equation represents the transfer function:
$$H(z)=\frac{H_0}{1+0.68z^2+0.62z^3+0.55z^4+0.50z^5+0.45z^6+0.42z^7+0.38z^8+0.35z^9}$$

The problem is that this polyphase filter is designed with 6 phases, and I do not know how to interpret this when it comes to finding zeroes and poles. If I plot equation and I add all 9 zeros, the graph does not seem to look right. If I add all 9 poles, then it seems to work, but the magnitudes are way too high, and far from my scope values. What is the correct way of interpretation when dealing with such kind of a multi-phase filter? Thank you. A: The three frequency response plots you show have been plotted using complex z -domain.
